

PASTOR'S BLOG

For the 'whosoever'

Isn't it amazing that the scriptures have been around for over two thousand years and is continually the most printed book in the world each year. What I find particularly amazing is not just the timeline of God's Word that was written long ago, and yet is more relevant than today's news articles. What I find amazing is that the bible often mentions that word 'Whosoever'.

Pastor Danny Miller

This term is used nearly two hundred times throughout scripture, and simply refers to 'anybody & everybody'.

In a world approaching eight billion people, and yet we are all individuals. We are all different. We have various backgrounds, experiences and pasts. We may be rich or poor, of different colour and culture, whether male or female, young or old, and yet the bible consistently reminds us that the scriptures are written for you.

As I write these blogs for our church website, I'm also reminded that those reading may have a faith in God and have been a Christian for many years. Maybe serving in full-time ministry. Then there are those with no faith and would class themselves as an atheist, there are a number that may read these blogs who once attended church and had a faith, but for various reasons which may be out of hurt or disappointment, no longer identify themselves as a believer. Then there are those who are 'searching', knowing that there is more to this life than simply existing and dying. Whatever way people identify themselves and however their past may look, I am convinced that God loves you, and I hope that these short articles can bring hope and encouragement to your world.

I have sat in top hotel restaurants next to multi millionaires and businessmen who have asked for prayer due to their crumbling world around them and broken marriages. I have also sat on a urine soaked mat on a rooftop next to an Isis member while I was in Iraq, who shared of the horror they have witnessed, and personally been involved in.

‘Therefore whoever confesses Me before men, him I will also confess before My Father who is in heaven’
Matthew 10:32

The whosoever in the bible, is each of these people. In a world of confusion, fear, violence and brokenness, allow the power and peace of God’s Word (The bible), to break through your perception of God, and be reminded of how precious you are to Him and that

His grace and forgiveness is greater than the depths of your sins and regrets.

The first church meeting at Bethel Chapel in Verwood, Dorset took place ninety years ago, back in 1931. The world was a different place as it is now, though it wasn’t long before Britain was at war with Germany and many lives were lost. Ninety years later, we still live in a world where things are uncertain. And yet, in an uncertain world is an unchanging message of hope and love. This is why, despite incredible persecution and resistance to the gospel of Jesus Christ around the world, this message of God’s love prevails.
